ABOUT OLGA ADLER

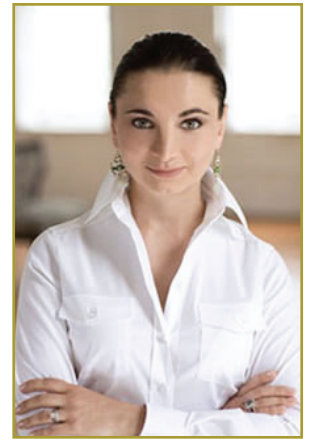

Olga Adler is the president and principal designer of Olga Adler Interiors. Known for her fondness for simple forms, love of color and unique accessories, she has won acclaim for her refreshing approach to classic design. Adler leads a talented team of designers and works with the best, most established and most innovative suppliers and service providers.

Born and educated in Europe, Adler is highly influenced by art and fashion trends. She began her career by working as a media and lifestyle consultant, creating high-profile events featuring American celebrities on their European tours. She brings her extensive project management experience to each of her projects, allowing her busy clients with high expectations to truly enjoy the design process.

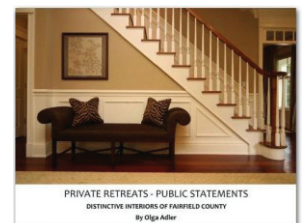

Combining her extensive travels throughout Europe, Africa and Asia with her American experience, she has honed in on what she considers to be the most important element to designing interiors: creating stylish rooms that, just like the best clothing, are crafted with a particular person in mind – high quality, custom and unique. She tunes in to her clients' unique lifestyles and pace of life and feels strongly about enabling them to express their own aspirations and sensibility while creating beautiful, functional and healthy interiors.

Her work has been featured in numerous magazines and in designer show houses. She is one of CTC&G “Designers You Should Know” and Mofly Media’s “Design Space” blog contributor.

Olga Adler is the author of “Private Retreats – Public Statements. Distinctive Interiors of Fairfield County” – a coffee table book published in 2011.

“My approach to interior design is lifestyle-driven. I enjoy being able to work with my clients in a wide variety of design styles so their homes reflect their lifestyle and personal tastes, not necessarily mine.”
